Among those who attended from Barre were G. Arroll, A. Colombo and Miss Lisa Abbiati.

The show at the Pavilion proved very satisfactory last night, both acts receiving big rounds of applause for their efforts. Cook and Wiegand, a team of English music hall favorites, were de serving of the ovation they received. In their act one sees the best known type of vaudeville before the public of Great Britain. It is very interesting to note the difference between this act and the usual American act. In many ways the difference is marked. The quaint native dialect which is natural to these performers lends an indescribable charm to the act. It is considered the best act ever imported by the great Keith vaudeville agency. Drayton, the man with many voices, is a marvel. The construction of this man's larynx is one of the secret things known to medical and surgical experts. It is fitted up with two sets of vocal chords. Many physicians have examined him and all have agreed in the statement that he has two sets of vocal chords.

The patrons of the Comique were pleasantly surprised last night on finding a splendid vaudeville act added to the usual program without extra charge of admission. The act, Ward and Barton, certainly made a hit and deserves honorable mention. This is without doubt one of the best things seen in Barre, and the management of the Comique is to be complimented on securing such a clever pair. Mr. Barton is a well-known Victor phonograph singer and is considered by that company to be one of America's most popular yodlers. In its catalogue for August, 1909, the Victor company places his singing highly, terming him "the prince of yodlers." Ward and Barton will remain at the Comique to-day and to-morrow, appearing once in the afternoon and at each performance in the evening.
